

Ryan Kelly, Founder and Chief Executive Officer, has received national acclaim for the impact that his publicly offered service has made on both the private and public transportation industries. Just recently he received the “Pacesetter Award” from the University of Georgia College of Family and Consumer Sciences acknowledging his successful ability to interface public and private sectors. He takes pride in corroborating with community development advocates and promoters of renewable energy. Kelly is an expert in federal grant research, writing, evaluation, and funding award administration. He has developed successful grant applications for federal agencies, including Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), United States Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), Federal Transit Administration (FTA), United States Department of Homeland Security (DHS), United States Department of Education (DOE), United States Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), USDA Rural Development, and Bureau of Indian Affairs as well as many state and foundation grants.
